D. Additional Bibliography

In addition to the Bibliographic notes in the formal syllabus, you will want to consider the following..and bibliographic materials are without end, I might add.

On inspiration:

Young, E.J. Thy Word is Truth..a strong evangelical work concentrating on the Lord's witness to Scripture.

Lightner, The Saviour and the Scripture..strongly conservative and more statistical than Young.

Beegle, D. The Inspiration of Scripture..moderately liberal denying inerrancy but upholding ethical, moral value.

Kuitert, H.M. Do You Understand What You Read..putting Biblical concepts into cultural settings that remove them from pressing relevance.

On revelation:

Berkouwer, G.C. General Revelation

Ramm, B. Special Revelation and the Word of God

On archaeology

Owen, G. Frederick. Archaeology and the Bible

Magnussen, Magnus. Archaeology of the Bible..a very negative approach

On Introduction at large:

Dillard, Raymond B. and Tremper Longman III. An Introduction to the Old Testament

Miller, H.L. General Biblical Introduction

(Remember that the essential bibliography is in the formal syllabus but I scatter added notes throughout these class notes...)
