take one off the top, and hand the rest of the pile to Mr. Eckelman who will take one off the top, and hand the rest of the pile (Laughter) . . . No one will stand up, please, and walk around and give each person one, or, you know, taking the whole pile and passing them on. You have to boil things down to simple form at the institute!

Make no false conclusions just looking at these things. _____
_____. This is page 2. Very good (to student) (Laughter) You see I have got that type of mind too! That's my problem! These papers are prepared in cooperation with the American Optometry Society! (Laughter) which the persons in the front row understand already, and you in the back row will soon realize! . . . . It's thoroughly clear, the same size as the newspaper! It's just that we altered it somewhat (?) _____

Now, when we talk about the question of unfulfilled prophecy (and you will discover that there are a lot of qualifications on these notes) (We seem to have passed all of the notes up except this bunch), you will find there a number of qualifications on these notes. But let me tell you why I became interested in the subject, while the notes are being passed. It has nothing to do with the topic. It's just my particular interest. Some years ago in connection with a course that I took from Dr. MacRae (I think in all fairness I should say that I took it at the instigation of Mr. Eckelman. He stimulated Dr. MacRae to give the course. Dr. MacRae gave the course. I took the course. It was a lot of work. But I was told a lot of times it wasn't a lot of work, so I learned a lesson right there -- no matter how much the student complains, look at him and say, You have not yet resisted unto blood, or other Biblical _____) So, I learned a lesson from the course if I didn't learn anything else! What we did in that particular course was start with the books of history, not the former prophets. We started at Kings, and Chronicles and Samuel, and went through Kings and Chronicles and Samuel and listed all the things that were predicted and how they were fulfilled, and we answered a lot of other stuff too. That was quite valuable and quite interesting, and on the whole, quite ~~interesting~~ regular, -quite routine. And then we launched from Kings and Chronicles and Samuel into the Book of Job where we spent a little time, and we went to about thirty Psalms, and then through about thirty Psalms we did the
